

Advances and Expectations

Today, we are in a time of unprecedented change and opportunity in technology and its application to solve real problems. Using information and opinion collected from a variety of sources, an overview of general trends in the Information and Communications Technology world will be presented, with particular reference to large scale data processing and storage and the development of international communications networks.

Primary author: JONES, Simon (International Computing Centre)

Presenter: JONES, Simon (International Computing Centre)

Track Classification: Theme 3: Advances in Sensors, Networks and Processing